Course Description

A course that introduces the students to the nature and task of constructive theology, theological method, and the classical as well as contemporary interpretations on major doctrines, with the expectation that the students will acquire the necessary background and hermeneutical skills for their own constructive work. As a course committed to the global expressions of theology, it draws various theological voices into the conversation in order to shed light on the assigned topics.

Objectives

At the end of the semester the students will:

1. Be able to name and articulate the main tenets of the major doctrines of the church.
2. Encounter contemporary interpretations and constructions of major theological themes.
3. Be able to locate themselves within the spectrum of theological ideas and movements.
4. Acquire hermeneutical skills to interpret any situation or material theologically.
5. Acquire and develop constructive theological skills.
6. Be able to construct a theological project that expresses their deep convictions and is faithful to their faith heritage and creatively responsive to their context.
7. Understand the connection of their theological ideas and faith journey.

Course Expectations and Requirements:

1. Regular class attendance and active participation in class discussions
2. Careful reading of assigned texts
3. Take leadership in centering/meditation
4. Leadership in small group discussion
5. Take home assignment during the reading week. Date due: April 1
6. Regular credit students: Final paper (6,000 words), date due: May 20.

General Criteria for Grading Papers

Basic grasp of the particular themes or issues in question. In order to reach the level of basic understanding, students will have to read the assigned materials, understand the structure of the arguments presented in these materials, and be able to present their thoughts on these matters in a coherent manner. Since this is the most basic of levels, the evaluation is normally in the C range.

Basic grasp of the themes or issues in question and the ability to engage in an extended exposition of their significance, placing them in their appropriate historical or theological context, and providing critical assessment of their strengths and weaknesses. This is the B level and presupposes the first level. What is added is analytical and critical thinking.

If independent, constructive, and creative thinking is added to basic grasp and critical exposition, then one moves into the A category.

Students should keep in mind that written work will be evaluated in terms of both content and form. Deficiencies in form will have an impact on the grade.

Required Texts

Policy on Extensions

The work for a course is terminated at the end of the final class session. Students' performance in the course is evaluated on the basis of work submitted by that time, unless an exception is made by the instructor, in which case a formal petition for extension must be approved by the instructor by the end of the final class session. Extensions of course work beyond the end of the semester will be approved only under extraordinary circumstances. Each instructor will include this policy on each course syllabus as well as the criteria by which she or he will grant such extraordinary exception.

In the event such an extension is approved, the instructor shall file the extension form with the Registrar by the date grades are due. The Student Review Committee shall monitor extensions. If no petition for extension is filed, a final grade will be submitted.

An extension may be granted for a period not to exceed six months from the end of the term. If the work is not completed by the date petitioned, a final grade will be submitted. Any renewal of an extension must be approved by the instructor and filed with the Registrar prior to the due date on the original petition. No extension or its renewal will exceed six months from the end of the term in question.
